PROFILE

Austin is always ready to bring out the best in others through his work. As he steps into web development, he brings skills honed as a music producer —adapting quickly to new tools, solving problems creatively, and working on version improvement with organized efficiency. He focuses on frontend development and content management, using tools like Sitecore and Next.js to build fast, user-centered experiences. As a collaborator, he values trust, communication, and flexibility above all else —essentials for creating meaningful digital products.
